FOR PRESIDENT,
GROVER CLEVELAND, New York

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
T. A. HENDRICKS, Indiana.

For Member of Congress,
FRANK POWERS, of Carter.

Cleveland, Ohio, has had a two-million dollar fire.

What has become of the talented young Democratic Elector for this district? It is high time we were hearing a blast from his lungs.

Ed Pierce, Plattsburg's rich man, was in town last week, looking after Mr. Wadsworth's fences. They say he is a rich man, but oh, my! how close!

The latest intelligence about the Mormon complications in Lewis county Tennessee is that notices have been posted on trees ordering the Mormons to leave the county, under penalty of death.

Halstead now says, "all we have to do to elect Blaine is to carry Ohio." Mr. Halstead, with the rest of the well posted Republican leaders, is beginning to realize how desperate Mr. Blaine's chances really are.

The primary contest in the Eighth District, on Saturday, resulted in the nomination of ex-Governor James B. McCreary, over Thompson and Durbin. McCreary is said to have spent a half of money. His majority is very decided.

It is reported that United States Minister Morton has with the knowledge of Prime Minister Ferry, intimated to the Government at Washington that the time is opportune for American mediation between France and China.

When convict labor was used in building the Chesapeake & Ohio and the extension of the Kentucky Central there was no talk of calling out the militia. If Bath, Montgomery, Clark and Madison could stand it, why can't Mullensburg?—The Sun.

All of Blaine's biographers are silent as to the time and place of his marriage. This important event has already been proven to have taken place in three different States and as many different times. This naturally excites comment.

The great Huntington railroad system connecting the Atlantic with the Pacific is now completed. The last spike on the Mississippi Valley road connecting Memphis and New Orleans was driven Saturday. Mr. Huntington now has a line over four thousand miles long, from Newport News to California.

There is little doubt that Mr. Samuel J. Tilden's health is rapidly giving away. This is the true reason why he declined to accept the Democratic nomination. The story about his gambols on stairways, and leaping the cow-bell fence, which we heard some months ago, appears to have been purely a matter of imagination. The country need not be startled at any time to hear of his death.

Our Republican brethren held a studiously attended mass meeting at the court house on Saturday evening for the purpose of selecting delegates to attend their Congressional convention in Mayville, on the 9th. Jas. McCune was selected to preside over the deliberations of the meeting and W. S. Gidgell secretary. All Republicans who attend the Mayville convention from this county were constituted delegates. No instructions were offered. The delegates were requested to vote for the most available man after a careful survey of the field.

The nomination of Hon. Wm. H. Wadsworth by the Republican convention at Mayville, on Tuesday, was secured on the first ballot by reason of his having secured the requisite number of instructed votes. Mr. Wadsworth thus steps in and tries to reap the fruits of Culbertson's labors. The latter's friends will resent the injustice done him by either withdrawing their support from Wadsworth altogether or giving up a very lukewarm article. We were of the opinion that the nomination of Culbertson was the strongest one the Republicans could make, and are rejoiced that it was not done. Powers will defeat Wadsworth handsily and by a large majority.

That Maine would go Republican Monday by a considerable majority has long been conceded. The majority, however, is not large enough to act as a special inspiration for the Republicans in the Presidential contest, if the estimate of the result received up to this writing are approximately accurate. Part of the Republican tactics was to represent that the Democrats were making a desperate effort to carry the State, and a few Republican Journals, having more regard for party bums than for character as newspapers made conspicuous the pretense that five thousand majority for Governor Robie, the Republican candidate for reelection, would be a signal Blaine triumph. The truth seems to be that the Democrats made nothing more than a perfunctory campaign, while the Republicans made a vigorous fight to swell the majority for effect on the November struggle. Many speakers were drawn from other States, and the canvass was practically over the skillful direction of Mr. Blaine himself. A candid study of the news received Monday night does not warrant the belief that Robie's majority will be greater than twelve thousand. Later returns may show that it is smaller; but even if they should make it a few thousand larger it will not be what the Republican managers in their hearts hoped for. We have no disposition to distort the figures or make a biased analysis for party purposes. Brag will not win. The truth is essential on party grounds, as well as on general principles; and we hold there is nothing encouraging in the truth to the Democracy. A brief review of Maine election statistics is pertinent. At the State election in September, 1880, the fusion movement overcame the Republican ticket by 180 majority. Expecting that election, there is an unbroken line of Republican successes for many years. The Republicans carried the State for President in 1876 by 16,685; for Governor in 1877 by 15,147; for Governor in 1878 by 15,115; for Governor in 1879 by 21,170; for President in 1880 by 8,808, and for Governor in 1882 by 8,872. About the year 1880 the Governor's term of office was extended to two years; hence there was no election figures for '81 and 1883. A correspondent of the Philadelphia Times, who has been on the ground considering Maine politics, takes up the four Presidential elections beginning with 1868, and finds that the average Republican majority would mark about 21,000. If the Maine election this year is to be a great boom for the Republican nation at ticket, the majority at Monday's election must be very much greater than the Republican majority in 1880 or 1882. According to the news received up to this time, the parties hold about the same position toward each other that they did in 1882, mathematically speaking. An increase of 3,000 in the Republican majority could probably be more than accounted for in the increase of the total vote. Governor Robie, a man of no special force in politics, seems to have been able to carry the State in 1882, without an unusual political excitement, by a majority nearly, if not quite, as large as that he receives when he has the assistance of the Republican candidate for the Presidency—a candidate rich in resources and brilliant in management, with every incentive to set a rousing Republican example in his own State for the encouragement of Republicans in other States. The returns indicate that the prohibition amendment carried by a large majority. It is reported that Mr. Blaine, in exercising the right of suffrage Monday, declined to vote on the Prohibition Amendment. He does not regard it as expedient to commit himself on the prohibition question. We believe that Mr. Joseph Benson Parker took a similar view of the question in this State last year. N. B.—Mr. J. B. F. was "left"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Charles J. Folger, Secretary of the Treasury of the United States, died at Geneva, New York, Thursday afternoon, at a quarter of five o'clock. His illness has been announced in dispatches for several days, but it was not anticipated that his death was so near at hand, and the news is received by the country with surprise as well as regret. As an officer at the government he was regarded by his associates at Washington as an honest and competent man. His private character was that of a gentleman—his habits of life simple, and all his relations with society pleasant.

The office of the Kentucky Union Railway is to be moved from Lexington to Clay City. Col. Bennett H. Young, of Louisville, has been placed upon the directory, and it is understood that a number of Western and Canadian capitalists have taken large blocks of stock in the enterprise, and will put up the funds for the completion of the road.

Our Republican brethren held a studiously attended mass meeting at the court house on Saturday evening for the purpose of selecting delegates to attend their Congressional convention in Mayville, on the 9th. Jas. McCune was selected to preside over the deliberations of the meeting and W. S. Gidgell secretary. All Republicans who attend the Mayville convention from this county were constituted delegates. ## Southern Exposition.

The success of the present Southern Exposition at Louisville, Ky., has surpassed the most sanguine expectations. This great exhibition has been open to the public only two weeks, yet the attendance has been twenty thousand greater than the corresponding period of last season, when the total attendance for seventy-one days was seven hundred and seventy thousand.

It is a fact spoken with enthusiasm by all who have visited the Southern Exposition of 1884, that its exhibits, music, and pyrotechnics, as well as other special features, are far superior to any ever attempted previously by any enterprise of similar purpose. It is thus referred to by David A. Murphy of the Danville Tribune: "The great Louisville Exposition is a delightful surprise to me. I had expected much, but the half had not been told me. It is wonderful and instructive in all its parts and must be seen to be fully appreciated. I could not describe it if I would! I heartily wish that every man, woman, and child in Kentucky could be persuaded to visit it. Long live its model President, Colonel Bennett H. Young."

Encouraged by the tremendous audiences and their enthusiasm, present at the $5,000 competition drill of last week, the programme committee have resolved to add special attractions for the future, among them a base ball tournament between league and association clubs, on the largest and handsomest grounds in America. A pigeon shooting tournament begins September 15, and then will follow exhibitions of live stock, including running and trotting horses, short horn, and other fine cattle, hogs, sheep, etc. Bees and honey, horticulture, flowers, wheat, etc., will all be shown as the Exposition moves on. On September 23, Gilmore's world-famous band will succeed the great Cappa and his corps of splendid musicians, whose programmes have caused unbounded enthusiasm since the beginning of the season.

The following description will enable the reader to form a fair idea of the character of entertainment, offered at the Southern Exposition of evenings, it being set as the programme for the night of Tuesday, September 9th.

A grand Baden-Baden Concert and illuminated Evening Fete, will be produced, at an immense expense, in the Park adjoining the Exposition Building. The beautiful grounds will be illuminated by ten thousand of Paine's patent, prismatic lamps, and numerous Japanese lanterns artistically arranged among the trees over the entire Park, and in various selected positions beautiful devices, mottoes, and other features of beauty will be placed, the whole effect being charming beyond description, and hitherto only to be witnessed in the far-famed European resort, Baden-Baden. The effect will be fairy land re-embodied, delighting the eye and charming the imagination.

The expense will be considerable, a special corps of assistants having been ordered from New York to assist Mr. Paine for the occasion, which will be the most novel, effective, and beautiful ever witnessed in America.

Myriads of variegated lights, encircling festooned groves, prismatic Fairy Fountains, Turkish Kiosks, all in one blaze of light, will charge the Park into a magical scene of beauty.

A grand promenade concert will be performed by Cappa's band, "The Blacksmith in the Forest," and the celebrated battle piece, with a chorus of one hundred voices, and pyrotechnical efforts will further enhance the interest. The "Forest of Fire," pronounced by George A. Sala, in the New York Times, as the greatest sight of the kind ever witnessed and given only once before in London, receiving the praise of press and public, will be introduced by Mr. Paine, the celebrated pyrotechnist.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Half Eagle.

C. I. Strongs is in Cincinnati this week having in his fall and winter stock of goods.

We had a splendid race Sunday, which was badly needed, as stock water was getting very scarce.

Laws Doolittle has made an assignment to John Shoop. Have not learned the amount of his indebtedness.

Misses Goff and Alice Strongs returned home Friday last after a week's visit to relatives in Fleming county.

Elders Zimmerman and Stallard closed a series of meetings at Reynoldsville last week, with forty-six additions to the Christian church.

Mr. Avery Crimes, of Paris, Mo., is visiting his daughter, Mrs. Lizzie Strongs. He reports the corn crop in Illinois better than ever known.

From the South.

Several times.

was the group of all the principal churches of the city upon one street, and in the same room. On Church street you may see the spires of every conceivable form, the mosque-like forms of the Jewish synagogue and the towers of the First Presbyterian church to the gradually tapering spire of the South Methodist church which seem united to place the spires, and the number of the towers nestled between the Jewish synagogue, Vanderbilt and Park University are noble structures, doing honor to their founders. What struck me most painfully, and almost repelled me, was the dingy habits of lining the street with Sunday houses was the seeming universal degradation of these holy day pleasure seekers. What is our country doing? Surely those last days, are one upon the Earth, which the Prophet graphically described, "When men shall become lovers of themselves rather than lovers of God," "covenant breakers, ready to swear," "Monday found me aboard the St. L. & Chat. train heading towards the south west. At Milan one of those vexatious plays and "waitings for the train" which are so grievous to the traveler, held me up. At 3:30 P. M. made my last change and headed South on the Ill. Pac. Of all the foolish looking countries that eye ever beheld, that through which the St. L. & Chat. R. R. passes, takes the rag. About Jackson Tenn, the thing improved and the "craps" looked a little less "diminished." Even then, to a little blue grass eye, the country seemed better adapted to bull frogs, water snakes and mosquitoes than to the habits of civilized Christians. Every one to his own taste however, as the old woman said when she kissed the cow. At Holly Springs night came upon us. I may have passed through a second "Garden of Eden" for I ought to know about it, but I rather suspect not, from the trumpet of the mosquitoes which kept up their monotonous din through the night. At 1:30 a. m. landed, tired, hungry and I confess, at the depot of Winona, Miss., and speedily found myself stretched upon that sheep inducing institution of the South, a cotton mattress, beneath a good mosquito net, at peace with all the world and especially with that pernicious little insect, with which I had done valiant battle for a hundred miles. "Peace be with the names of the slaughtered."

Winona is an active, live town of 1,500 people, growing like magic. On the morning aboard a wagon, the face simile of "Uncle Sam" old Mr. Sterling "goes out," and with the pleasant, homelike "good-by" of a second edition, revised, but not improved, of "Uncle Sam," said good-bye as a farmer, I took my way towards my destination, and as I passed amid the melancholy pines and between the cotton fields the sounds of the song the girls and boys sang, as I last night in Bath came echoing mournfully across my spirit.

"I'm going to take cotton field And oh! it makes me sigh, For when the sun goes down to-night, I'm bound to say good-bye."

A Choice Chapter:

As hardened as we have become by the constant and unchecked recurrence of crime in our midst, it caused a chill of horror to thrill through this community on Thursday morning last, when it was reported that Steve Mockabee had shot and killed his brother Henry the night before, at the residence of their father, Press Mockabee, in the southwestern portion of this county. The report was too horrible for belief, but was speedily confirmed, and reported in all of its sickening details. Steve was here the most of the day Wednesday, and though drinking some, was not drunk when he left. His companion, who seems to be a kindred spirit, was Newton Collier. They went by the quiet little town of Stone, where they then proceeded to take entire charge of the municipal affairs of the place. They appeared peacefully for the authorities to come and arrest them, so that they could make meal sitters of their bodies. As a very funny diversion, they fired two shots at a passing train. It was in some such mood as this that Steve Mockabee arrived at his father's house late on that fatal night. In a rough and hasty manner he demanded something to eat, which his mother arose from her bed and prepared for him. After eating he went to his room upstairs, but did not remain long. He came back down and demanded more to eat, at the same time taking the shot gun down from the rack and throwing it around in a reckless and threatening manner. Up to this time Henry had remained upstairs, but he now went down in order to try and pacify his brother. No sooner had he entered the room when Steve presented the gun with the remark, "Don't you come near me," and fired. The gun was loaded with squirrel shot and the whole charge entered the left side of the poor boy's abdomen, tearing a gaping hole, into which the hand could easily be thrust. Immediately after the shot, remorse seemed to seize the murderous brother and he was wild in his grief. Physicians were summoned, with whom Henry conversed. He requested them to replace his bowels, before he died, from the wound, before he died and also to give him something to relieve the terrible pain. He lived from one and a half to two hours after the wound was inflicted.

The participants in this bloody drama are sons of Preston Mockabee, an old and respected farmer of this county and in the great edacity that has overtaken him in his declining years, he has the heartfelt sympathy of this entire community. Henry Mockabee was twenty-five or twenty-six years old and has led a checkered life. For an assumed participation in the murder of Marshal Jas. L. Young, in Mt. Sterling, in the fall of 1878, he was tried, convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary for two years; but through the interference of friends he was pardoned by Governor Blackburn before being taken from the jail. After this he was knocked senseless and his skull fractured by some convicts whom he was guarding on the railroad work in this county. In some portion of the South, while a fugitive, he was compelled to shoot and dangerously wound a man in self defense. With all of his faults he was immeasurably better than his wretched brother, who now lies a prisoner in our jail with hands dripping with his brother's blood.

There is an air of mystery surrounding the attempted self-destruction of James Best, which leads to the belief that there was a woman at the bottom of it. It was impossible for our reporter to get into the particulars. A 1 that could be learned Monday was that at Wm. Stiles' home, near Spencer church, in Montgomery county, late Saturday evening, Jim Best shot himself in the head with a pistol in a fit of insanity. The physician pronounced him dead.

pronounced him dead. Best was a quiet, industrious and highly respected young tobacco raiser of the neighborhood, and the rash act was quite a surprise to his friends. SHOOTING THE SQUIRREL AND THEN HIMSELF.

A young man named Seneca Swin, who lives on what is known as the old Tommy Lewis place in the extreme eastern portion of this county, indicted upon himself, very foolishly, on Friday last, what will, in all probability prove a fatal wound. He was out hunting squirrels and had wounded one which began to climb the trunk of a tree. Under the excitement of the moment young Swin climbed his gun, which was a double barrel, and began striking at the squirrel and struck one lick too many. The remaining barrel was exploded and the whole charge of shot took effect in his left leg just above the knee tearing the flesh and shattering the bone in a dreadful manner. Amputation will be rendered necessary.

ONE SHOT DOES IT ANOTHER. Clark Barbridge, a ten year old negro boy, was handling a pistol in a tenant house on Newt. Ratliff's place on Sunday evening, when Smith Jones, an older negro, came in and told Barbridge to hand him the pistol. This he started to do, when the weapon exploded, the ball taking effect in Jones' left side, above the heart and inflicting a very dangerous wound. The shooting was the result of carelessness.

After eight long, weary years of patient suffering, Ida B., oldest daughter of Judge E. V. and Emily Brother, quietly breathed her last at an early hour Monday morning. Tender, loving hands ministered to her wants to the last, and when the soul took its flight from the weary, pain-racked tenement, the family were all gathered there to take a last long farewell of the daughter and sister who had borne up so bravely and uncomplainingly under her long suffering, and to whose every want it had been their pleasure to minister. The last services were performed at the residence Tuesday evening, from which place a large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends followed the remains to their last resting place. We extend to the family our heart felt sympathy in their great sorrow.

There is an example worthy the emulation of other church congregations: The new and elegant M. E. church at Mt. Sterling, costing twelve thousand dollars, was dedicated Sunday by Rev. Mr. Morrison, of Louisville. There was an unpaid balance of some thing over $9,500 still to be raised. After the sermon a subscription paper was passed around and when it had made the circuit of the audience it was found that over $3,700 had been subscribed. Hon. B. F. Cockrell led off with $500.

A fine line of neckwear at Slessor's. The case of R. A. Mitchell against the county of Montgomery, on charge of coming to this county, is being tried as we go to press. Mitchell sues the county for $1,500 for making a cross index to the suits on file in the circuit clerk's office of Montgomery. The magistrates only offered him $500. It is thought the plaintiff will recover judgment for $800 or $1,000.

In glancing over the indictments returned at the present term of court, our eye fell upon the following: Commonwealth against Ben Shouse, murderer, signed, A True Bill. Then down at the bottom, "Bail $5,000." If ever there was a cold-blooded, face-bald number perpetrated on the face of the earth, it was the killing of poor, feeble old man Fultz by Ben Shouse, alias Murray.

For the next thirty days Slessor will sell goods cheaper than ever known in this section, to make room for his fall purchases. Close buyers will take advantage of this fact, as they know that Slessor keeps nothing but what is first class in every particular. Call early for bargains.

The grand jury adjourned Tuesday evening, after returning into court 57 indictments, the great bulk of which were for minor infractions of the law, such as carrying concealed weapons, selling liquor &c. There were two indictments for murder, one against Ben Shouse and the other against Steve Mockabee.

Dr. N. E. Pierce, having located here for the practice of his profession, offers his services to the citizens of Owingsville and vicinity. He can be found at McIntire's Restaurant, Main street, until he can obtain suitable residence for himself. Notice of which will be given.

Those who want the latest news from the Campaign will find the Cincinnati Evening Post the very paper. It is popular, bright and honest. 1,000 New-Years sold in Cincinnati, and a large number in other cities.

A Missionary Hen.

Rev. Harry Henderson had a little talk with us about a hen whose history may be of profit, as it may encourage some good lady to set apart a hen for the heathen. The above mentioned speckled hen only cost twenty cents; laid thirty two eggs last year. Two dozen of the eggs paid for her. She hatched twenty five chickens and only lost three, the remaining twenty-two being sold for $3.30. Being late chickens they only brought fifteen cents each.

Remark: Set your missionary hen earlier in the season. The owner of this religious pullet is Mrs. Frances Cook. Let every woman give one of the best hens in the barn yard to the cause of missions. The result will tell.

The case of the Commonwealth against Jeff Howard, charged with murder, was given to the jury on Thursday evening last after able arguments by Messrs. Stone and Patterson for the defense and Young and Brooks for the State. Incorporated with the usual instructions in such cases was one on the point of involuntary manslaughter which merely imposes a fine and imprisonment in the county jail or either, in the discretion of the jury. Acting under this latter instruction the jury returned a verdict for $150 against Howard. The verdict is considered a manly one, well worthy of the unenviable name our fair county—so much worthy of a better fate—leans away from home.

About thirty of the colts of Great Heart, Eck Emmons' fine stallion, were at Sherburne last Saturday to contend for the two premiums of $7.50 each, which he offered for the best horse and mare colts respectively. The premium on the horse colt was awarded to Geo. W. Donaldson, and that on the mare colt to J. J. Fleming, of Bath county, although Mr. Emmons is a Fleming county man. Mr. W. N. Smoot says that for size, form, style and action, this lot of colts could not have been surpassed in the State.

Lee Rice, auctioneer, reports the following sales for Monday, county court day:

Five yearling steers, $36.40 per head; four short yearlings, $25.25 per head; one yearling, $26.25. There were a good many mule colts on the market, but for a lack of buyers but very few were sold. Prices ranged from $40 to $75. One lot of 105 mountain sheep sold for $180.

Those live, wide awake livery men, Thompson & Ramsey last week placed an elegant new bus on the road from this place to Preston. The "Iva D. Thompson" is a perfect beauty and will prove a joy and a comfort to the traveling public and a source of profit to their enterprising owners. Uncle Jim Davis still handles the ribbons and the brake, which insures safe transit.

Squirrels are said to be coming into the country above Cross Roads in Rowan county, by thousands. We even hear that they are invading Bath. If this is true, our hunters will have a fine time.

Protracted Meeting.

During the last few days Eld. Stafford of this place has been preaching at Reynoldsville. The audiences were large and a deep religious interest took hold upon that community of people. Whole families were brought into the church and the meeting closed with 35 baptisms. Eld. Stafford left here Friday for Harrison county, his former home, to hold a protracted meeting of two weeks continuance. The Christian church in this place is to be thoroughly renovated and the pastor is to be assisted by Eld. Briney of Covington Ky. in a protracted meeting some time in November. Mr. R. is regarded as a very able preacher among the Disciples.

Justice stands appalled, with blanched cheeks and staring eyes, at the remorseless and unchecked march of the red-handed murderer through our county. She has, on bended knee, and with the eloquence of inspiration, plead with our juries to assist, by their verdicts, in building up a public sentiment which would insure to our citizens some security of life and, in case it was wrongfully taken, the sure and speedy punishment of the murderer.

The present state of society in this county is alarming. Men of families do not seem to realize the danger that threatens them, and all hands seem to have become callous to the surroundings. When the next pistol shot will sound the death knell of some father, husband or son, no one can tell. It may come today, or it may come tomorrow, but come it will, and judging the future by the past, the murderer will enjoy a perfect immunity from all harm. The only remedy for this state of affairs is with our juries. Until they are composed of men who regard their oaths and dare to do their duty, crime will continue to increase in Bath.

Mr. John A. Turner has handed us a copy of the Northern Neck News, from Warsaw, Va., from which we clip the following: We see it stated in the Alexandria Gazette, that Mr. Pierson, a farmer near Monaskin wharf, Lancaster Co., has sold 500 bushels of wheat to the Agricultural Department at Washington, for $2.50 per bushel.

Lightning was on a wild hunt for Sharpsburg last Sunday evening. Two stacks of hay belonging to "Brum" Barnes in the edge of town were struck and burned and on the opposite side of town a stack belonging to Judge L. S. Rogers was struck and would have burned had not Mr. Rogers scattered the hay out.

Mr. L. P. DeAtley, a farmer living in the Bethel neighborhood, this county, made an assignment last Friday to Jno. J. Smoot, for the benefit of his creditors. His liabilities are between twenty-five hundred and three thousand dollars, with assets sufficient, it is thought to fully cover this amount.

One of the clockiest things on record is the application of the red-handed murderer, Ben Shouse, for bail. In no other county in Kentucky would such a thing be attempted.

At the colt show here Monday, the get of Perry Goodpaster's horse, Finney, Smoot Young was awarded the premium on the mare colt, and Tarkenton did on the horse colt.
